

The Friends of the Guildhall Museums

Supporting the work of two wonderful and very different museums; the Guildhall Museum in Rochester and the Old Brook Pumping Station in Chatham.

THE MAIN GUILDHALL MUSEUM is a lively and colourful treasure trove of Medway's history. Situated in the heart of historic Rochester it is housed in two adjacent listed buildings - the town's magnificent 17th century Guildhall and the former Medway Conservancy Board building. The Museum is home to thousands of objects that illustrate the history of Medway.

THE OLD BROOK PUMPING STATION lies in the centre of Chatham. It was opened in 1929 to solve Chatham's drainage problems by lifting foul water away from the lowest part of the town. The Pumping Station was operational until 1980 and the engines are still in full working order. This fascinating museum is managed and maintained by the Medway Industrial Archaeology Group with the support of Medway Council.

Membership of the Friends offers opportunities to become involved in the activities of the museums and have a voice in the development of the services and facilities they offer. By paying a small subscription every year our members know that they are both helping to preserve our unique heritage and providing opportunities for it to be enjoyed by today's visitors.
